Mrs. F. T. Sykes, 80 Chestnut street, Springfield, Ohio, "suffering," she says, "perfect torture with pain and soreness through back and chest," and her husband troubled with a dry, hoarse cough (both cured by this Oil) make particular mention of its soothing and healing effects.

Charles Reed, 24 Jackson street, Milwaukee, Wis., who was in the explosion at the Grand Opera House, in that City, January 16, 1883, speaks of it as "a very reliable and a very safe medicine." He sustained painful injuries in this accident. With the use of the Oil he was able to get out in a few days.

Rev. E. F. Crane, Dunkirk, N. Y., speaks in glowing terms of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil as a remedy for catarrh, and says, "notwithstanding the delicate nature of the mucous membrane of the nasal organs the Oil can be snuffed up with perfect impunity."

There is no doubt about its absolute safety.

Household Hints.

[New York Evening Post.]

A pretty panel for the wall is made of black velvet, with an owl on a branch painted on it. The bottom of the panel should have gilt fringe across it. This, if heavy, will help to make the panel hang as it should.

A delicious whortleberry pudding is made of one pint of molasses, one teaspoonful of soda, one cup of sweet milk, one quart of berries, flour enough to make a stiff batter; add spices if you like the flavor. This pudding is to be boiled for two hours and a half. A good way to prepare it for boiling is to butter the inside of a tin pail, put the pudding into it, cover it, and set into a kettle of boiling water. Replenish from the tea-kettle when the water evaporates.

A nice sauce to serve with the whortleberry pudding is made of one cup of white sugar, a third of a cup of butter, half cup of cream, put into a sauce pan, and add half a teacupful of boiling water. Let it simmer gently on the stove for five minutes; stir it carefully; flavor with a few drops of vanilla.

Some housekeepers have adopted a new method in putting up fruit. They can it, using a little sugar; then when cooler days come, and they are not hurried, they make jam or preserves. This method is highly recommended for those women who do not have sufficient help, and are obliged to put up fruit hastily and with many interruptions, or not at all.

Provide yourself with a little strainer before you begin the operation of putting up fruit; it is so much more satisfactory to dip with.

To make strawberry preserves put two pounds of sugar and half a pint of boiling water into a porcelain kettle. After the sugar is dissolved and has almost reached the boiling point, put the fruit in; let it boil until the fruit looks clear; have the cans standing in a pan of hot water on the back part of the range or stove; skim the berries out, draining the juice from them as much as possible; then boil the juice until it is thick and pour it over the fruit in the cans. If these have been kept in the pan of hot water they will be all ready for the hot syrup, and the can may be closed at once.

Here is an excellent receipt for chicken croquettes, which are so popular now and so frequently served with salads at evening parties: Boil two medium-sized chickens until they are very tender, chop them fine, add one pint of cream, almost half a pound of butter, with a liberal allowance of salt and pepper. The easiest way to shape these is to press some of the mixture firmly into small moulds, or shallow cups will do; fry them in hot lard until they are brown; some cooks prefer salad oil to butter, but clarified butter gives a much more agreeable flavor and a better color.

String beans when young and tender make a good salad. Cut them in small pieces, boil in salted water until they are tender, drain them well, and mix with them some onions chopped fine, and pour over them a mayonnaise dressing. The onions may be left out if you prefer to do so.

Cold slaw is a good garnish for fried or broiled lamb chops.

Shrimp salad is so delicious that the man or woman who has not tasted it has something to brighten their future. If canned shrimps are used drain and air them well, then rinse them. Pour vinegar over them, with a very little oil or clarified butter mixed with it. Let them stand in this for three-quarters of an hour, or still better for an hour; drain this off, line the salad bowl with crisp lettuce leaves, and place the shrimps within, or a still prettier way is to make cups of the lettuce leaves and put shrimps in them. The dressing may be poured over them or be served by itself. Any salad dressing that is suitable for chickens or fish may be served with shrimps.

To make cologne water try this rule: To one quart of alcohol allow three drachms of oil of lavender, one drachm oil of rosemary, three drachms each of oil of bergamot and essence of lemon, and three drops of the oil of cinnamon.

For the filling for an orange short-cake, take large oranges, peel them, chop them fine, remove the seeds, add half of a peeled lemon, and one cup of sugar. Spread between the layers of short-cake while it is hot. This may be used for layer-cake filling also, but in that case add the well-beaten white of one egg.

A cinnamon-roll cake will taste good about once a year. Take one cup of sour cream, one cup of sugar, half a cup of melted butter, one egg, one teaspoonful of soda; mix as if you were making cookies; use flour enough to have a light dough, but stiff enough to roll; roll this out and scatter ground cinnamon over it, then roll it up as if for jelly cake, and bake. This may be served as a pudding also, if hot wine sauce is poured over it as soon as it is taken from the oven.

Cream cake, so dear to the heart of the children, can be made by splitting patty-pan cakes, taking out a portion of the centre and filling the space with thick custard. There need be no waste, as the pieces cut out may be used in the foundation for a rice pudding.

The ingenuity of woman is taxed to the utmost to invent some new way of bordering a table-cover. Here is a pretty and simple way: Suppose the cloth is of dark crimson or cardinal; cut the edge in large scallops, and pink the scallops, then around the edge and below it, so that it may be seen for about four inches below the cardinal scallops, put a strip of blue either of felt or flannel. Scallop and pink the edge of this. This strip may be of velveteen if you choose. The corners of the spread may be embroidered, and for a square table this makes an effective covering.

A lovely cushion to lay upon the broad sofa, now so fashionable, is covered with black satin. A spray of ribbon embroidery in the form of a branch broken from a wild rose bush is the ornamentation. The cushion is finished with a pleating of the black satin around. The upper edge is only fringed for a quarter, or at most a half an inch, but the bottom may be fringed for an inch or even more. A single box pleating is pretty for this; do not leave any noticeable space between the pleats.

Many a housewife is deterred from making satisfactory and needed changes in pillows from the fact that it is almost impossible to do anything with feathers without losing and scattering them. If this plan is pursued she need have no further trouble: Suppose that she wishes to increase the size of a pair of pillows by adding the contents of a third pillow to them; divide the pillow in two parts by tying a string tightly through the centre, then rip about a quarter of a yard at the end, and rip the same length at the end of the pillow that you wish to increase, then join these two cases and sew them together; by so doing, you can shake the feathers into the case without scattering them at all. When they are out of the small case, rip the seam and sew the case firmly. In buying ticking it is always well to buy the best; you will save a great deal of time and energy if the ticking is so firm and closely woven that feathers do not find their way out, to blow about the room.

A correspondent says she has canned pie-plant, with good results, by baking it instead of boiling it; she cut the stalks in pieces about an inch long, put in earthen pudding dishes, or on pie plates, scattered sugar over it abundantly, and baked; then she put her cans into a pan of hot water on the top of the stove, and when the pie-plant was tender put it and the syrup formed by the juice and the sugar in also, and when the can was full sealed it up. She says that the juice thus formed is much richer, and that it takes less sugar to sweeten it than is required in the boiling process.

Oatmeal ginger-bread is highly recommended for the children's lunch. Use oatmeal instead of flour.

Pickles made of the large garden strawberries are a novelty, and are highly esteemed. Put the fresh berries in a jar, a layer in the bottom first, with cinnamon and cloves scattered over them, then put another layer of berries, and continue in this way until the jar is nearly full, then pour over them a syrup made of two cups of vinegar and about three cups of sugar; heat this to the boiling point, and then pour it into the jar. Let it stand from one morning until the next, then pour berries and syrup into a preserving kettle, and let them boil slowly for nearly half an hour. If you are careful to let them cook slowly, and do not break them when stirring, the berries will keep their shape perfectly. If canned, they are sure to be fresh and delicious when wanted.

How many times in the year the mistress of the house needs to be reminded of the admonition of a wise woman: "Drive your work, but do not let your work drive you!" That is, plan it all out, so that each day's work will clear something from your way. Do not let work accumulate until you live under a weight of uneasiness and of hurry, which is destructive of comfort. Deliberate and calm thought will help you. A strong belief in a future will help you—that is, on a cold day do not allow yourself to believe that the boys will not need cotton blouses in July and August, or that you can get along without any summer clothes. And, on the other hand, cherish the thought that it is of consequence that the woollen stockings and wrappers are laid away clean and whole for use in a coming December. There are women who need to be reminded that to-day is not all of time.

Death by Wire.

KILLING OF A BRIDGEPORT (CT.) BOY BY ELECTRICITY.

A few days ago a Bridgeport (Ct.) despatch was printed, announcing the killing of a boy named Emil Schultheiss by the current from an electric light wire. The story as told seemed improbable, but it proves to be true as to the fact of his death, though there is still a lack of explanation of all the circumstances. The accident happened early Friday evening. The Bridgeport Farmer of Saturday says that Schultheiss and a dozen other boys found a piece of telegraph wire hanging from an electric light wire. The wire was securely hooked at the top, and hung, swaying in the wind, nearly reaching to the ground. The first boy, according to the statements of about eight of the lads, witnesses to the catastrophe, who caught hold of the wire to gratify his curiosity was John Crowley. He only received a slight shock, and his success encouraged the others to try it. John Rickoh next seized the wire, and immediately turned a somersault from the effect of the current, which was strong. No one dared to touch the dangling line till young Emil, who is about 11 years of age, caught hold with one hand.

He received a terrible shock, as the fluid passed to the ground. He turned around quickly and cried, "Take it away," striving with the other hand to remove the wire. He fell heavily to the earth without being able to loosen his grasp on the wire. His brother Henry ran to his assistance and forced open his clenched fingers and palm. He lay apparently paralyzed for a few moments, and was then carried home by his brother and some companions. Harry Murphy was one of the older boys who saw a part of the occurrence. He said that the first thing that he saw was when young Emil took hold of the wire, and he described the event as above. He further said that Emil's brother knocked Emil's hands off the wire; this he could swear to. He himself helped to carry the boy home. Emil did not die till they arrived there. Soon after reaching the house, Murphy says that Emil gave two or three long gasps and expired. He did not know anything about the wire or how it came there.

Wonderful Railroading.

OVERCOMING A GRADE OF OVER FOUR HUNDRED FEET IN A MILE.

Much has been written about the construction of the mountain divisions of the Rio Grande; travellers have marvelled at the 4 per cent. grades and the 15° curvature, of the remarkable narrow gauge railroad which penetrates the most rugged canons and climbs the most lofty mountain ranges of the Rockies, says the Leadville Democrat. But nobody has ever well described the wonderful little feeder of the Leadville division which modestly leaves the mainline in Brown's canon, and ascends the mountain gulches to the east with the steepest grades and the heaviest curves in the world that are overcome with the ordinary drive wheel locomotive. Afar up in this range of mountains, seven miles away, and nearly 3,000 feet higher than the bed of the canon, is the famous Calumet mine, from which is extracted the hematite iron ore that keeps in blast the furnaces of the Bessemer works at Pueblo. Every morning of the year a ponderous locomotive and a small train of cars toils up this steep, and every afternoon they make the perilous descent to the valley, loaded with iron, with the steam brakes on the cars, the water pressure on the locomotive drivers, and a man standing at the brake wheel of each car.

This is the most wonderful piece of railroading in the universe. The maximum grade is 400 feet to the mile, or nearly 8 per cent., and the maximum curvature 25°. The terminal of the branch is half a mile higher than the commencement. Imagine, then, the difficulty in ascending with empty cars, and the danger of descending with loaded ones. Still, strange though it may seem, a locomotive cannot make the descent unless at least five cars are attached. The latter are necessary to provide the resisting power for the steam brakes. The trip up is snailish, the return is rapid, in spite of the steam pressure which sets the car wheels into sparks that fly out in a constant stream from the brakes, in spite of the reverse action, in spite of the lavish use of the sand pipe, and in spite of the water brake on the locomotive drive wheels. ... Some few years ago, when the operation of the line was commenced, runaway accidents were of almost daily occurrence. The seven miles were within a brief period strewn with the wrecks of cars and locomotives and iron ore. The most discouraging results attended the persistent efforts to make the line serve the purpose for which it was constructed. Day after day control over the descending train would be lost; some defect would interfere with the working of the steam break, and, even with the break in successful operation, the train would take a crazy notion and go flying down the mountain sides, along the brinks of fearful precipices; through the rock-bound gullies and around the acute curbs like a bolt of lightning. The train hands would leap for life, and then the locomotive and cars would be dashed into fragments. In all these accidents, however, nobody was hurt. Thousands and thousands of dollars' worth of rolling stock is said to have been destroyed before a successful system of operation was established. Only very few of the higher officials of the Rio Grande realize how terrible was the experience of these rides, and it is told of two of them who once summoned up sufficient curiosity and courage to make the journey, they were so frightened that they hung on to the steps of the caboose, expecting every moment to have to leap for life.

Finally, extremely heavy locomotives were built, and a force of exceptionally brave train-men were secured. The latter were instructed to cling to their posts at every hazard and to never flinch in the moment of danger. Not a serious accident has been recorded since. Starting from the mine every brake is manned, so that in case the steam should fail the train could be checked. While there have been several runaways, in two years there has not been a wreck. The sight of one of these trains descending is one of thrilling interest, the sparks from the car wheels cutting a pathway of light down the mountains, which can best be described as having the appearance of a molten stream of fire rolling down to the river bed of the canon.

In Switzerland, there are grades as steep as these of the Calumet branch, but they are equipped for operation with the cable and cogwheels.

If you are suffering from Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness, Laryngitis, Bronchitis, Asthma, Weak Lungs or Consumption, you should call and have your case attended to before it is too late, for many useful lives have been lost which might have been saved had the proper remedies been employed in time. Dr. Souvielle and his surgeons are strictly specialists and use the latest appliances for treating diseases of the respiratory organs. "GRUNT IT OUT."

The above is an old saw as savage as it is senseless. You can't "grunt out" dyspepsia, nor liver complaint, nor nervousness if they once get a good hold. They don't remove themselves in that way. The taking a few doses of Burdock Blood Bitters is better than "grunting it out." What we can cure let's not endure.

A YELLING BABY

Is something to be avoided. Babies with colds, babies with croup, babies with scalds, burns, bites, aches, sprains, or pains, are bound to become noisy tenants of the household. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will cure all these complaints.

THE RESURRECTION OF LAZARUS

Was a miraculous operation. No one thinks of raising the dead these times, though some desperately close to death's door have been restored by Burdock Blood Bitters to genuine and lasting health.

Distinguished Visitors

The demonstration yesterday in honor of our candidates for President and Vice President, Hon. James G. Blaine and Gen. Logan, reflects credit upon the citizens of Bangor. Our people are always glad to welcome Mr. Blaine to their midst, and this time that he came they [illegible] the chosen candidate of the people for the highest honor that could be bestowed upon any citizen of this country, added a new pleasure to this reception. Gen. Logan, during his brief stay in the State, has received [illegible] manifestations of the high esteem in which he is held as a gallant soldier, an honored statesman and a worthy associate of Maine's distinguished son on the Republican ticket, but nowhere has the feeling been more sincere than in Bangor. The opening notes of the campaign have been [illegible] upon the right key. The Republicans throughout the State are [illegible] united and ready for the fight. There will be no sluggards this year. Every man has enlisted for the fight and will labor earnestly to the end that Maine's [illegible] may be a most decisive one.

Why Not Elect Him?

[illegible] of the most prominent [illegible] Independents to tell us ex[illegible] why a good Republican ought not to [illegible] Mr. Blaine. He admitted that it [illegible] difficult to formulate any [illegible] beyond the general belief [illegible] Mr. Blaine is not a high-toned statesman [illegible] does not thoroughly believe in [illegible] reforms of the day. We said [illegible] the whole tone of the opposition [illegible] to the effect that Mr. Blaine is personally corrupt, criminally and totally unworthy of being President. [illegible] reply was that there could [illegible] charges in detail to sustain [illegible].

[illegible] But that Mr. Blaine is the [illegible] fairly expressed choice of the [illegible] doubted. That he represents the party is equally certain. Indeed [illegible] complaint of many of those who [illegible] is the choice of the party [illegible] fairly represents the party [illegible] which should [illegible] to any member of the party that he cannot be supported? [illegible] Massachusetts. Grant it. It was [illegible] do it, but it is not [illegible] It won't do for this to [illegible] and help [illegible] a Democratic administration. What [illegible] official wrong-doing, [illegible] blunder of official policy can be [illegible] on which to found a bolt? We [illegible] confess we do not know. If any [illegible] know our columns are at his ser[vice] to illustrate. On the contrary a long brilliant record of Republican service [illegible] the raison d'être of the popular [illegible] which has finally overborne all [illegible].

[illegible] conclusive against any man in [illegible] that somebody charges him with [illegible] thing. He would be a poor sho[w] [illegible] enemies and shun so unfail[ing] [illegible] no statesman unfortunate [illegible] to succeed. Mr. Blaine is too [illegible] aggressive to escape hostility [illegible] is the target for all guns. It [illegible] be [illegible] preserved according to [illegible]. But we have yet to hear of any [illegible] any good Republican should refuse to vote for him.

That 200,000 Majority

[New York Tribune.]

The Democrats and their free trade ad[visers] resort to figures to prove that Gov. Cleveland would be invincible in New York if they will kindly nominate him. They will find out about that. But mean[while] there is no reason for allowing them [to] rush upon their fate without warning. [A] few facts deserve notice.

I. It is perpetually reiterated that Gov. Cleveland carried this State by "two hun[dred] thousand majority." He had a plu[rality] of 192,854, and yet he received "20,-220 less votes than were cast for President Garfield." If that proves him invincible let him be put up at once.

II. It is commonly claimed that the "Independent" vote selected Governor Cleveland. The fact is that the people who stayed at home elected him, and of them at the very least 140,000 were Republicans. How the stay-at-homes might have voted if they had voted at all, only the omnis[cient] [illegible]

[illegible] editors of free-trade journals can tell.

III. The truth about New York is that Governor Cleveland happened to run at a time when his opponent, Secretary Folger, though a worthy and able man whose personal fitness no one questioned, could not command two-thirds of the Republican vote. It is now well known that some of the ablest and most influential of the old Stalwart leaders had taken offence at President Arthur. At the same time the selection of a cabinet officer, and some of the steps leading to his nomination, had displeased many others. The causes are not now pertinent. The fact is that the individuals who are now posing as "Independents" had about as much to do with the election of Gov. Cleveland as the noise in their committee room has to do with a passing railway train.

There are 600,000 Republican voters in New York this year. If anybody thinks Governor Cleveland can get 5,000 of them, or that Mr. Blaine will not get very much more than 5,000 Democratic votes as the champion of protection and of manly defence of American interests, we advise by all means that the experiment be tried.

Meanwhile, [illegible] one of the Democratic and British press indicates that there is a great deal of doubt whether Mr. Cleveland pleases his own party as much as he pleases the representative of British interests. There may be [illegible] unkind references to [illegible] Flower. But dispatches show that something will have to be ground exceeding fine before anything but Flower can be evolved from the convention. It would seem that possibly the British journals do not understand the Democratic party any better than they did the Republican.

General Butler Talks

BLAINE THE STRONGEST CANDIDATE—THE DISSATISFACTION MORE APPARENT THAN REAL—ELEMENTS OF STRENGTH.

"Are you willing to give your views of the political situation, General?" asked a Tribune reporter of General Benjamin F. Butler at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

"I do not know that they will be of interest to anybody," was the answer, "but I know no reason why I should conceal them."

Reporter—What do you think of the nomination of Mr. Blaine?

General Butler—I gave my views on the subject the day after his nomination. It is the strongest nomination that could have been made, as it has turned out.

Reporter—But there seems to be a great number of bolters.

General Butler—More apparent than real. I can remember when Mr. Webster said of Taylor's nomination by the Whig party, "It's a nomination not fit to be made," while it was true but the popular enthusiasm carried him through, and the bolters were whipped in before election. In Massachusetts 10,000 Republicans left the party in 1878 and 1879 and voted independently. But they were not the so-called Independents of to-day. Their action was a protest against the rule of the Republican party, which was then substantially under the control of men who now bolt Mr. Blaine's nomination, and James Freeman Clarke and Charles Francis Adams, and their co-workers, now having repudiated the regular nomination of the party in most contingencies will return to Mr. Blaine, certainly, rather than vote for anybody that those men should support [illegible] party may [illegible] nominated.

Reporter—But is not New York the battle ground?

General Butler—Yes, and the neighboring States of Connecticut and New Jersey. In New York this curious political condition arose. In 1882 60,000 to 75,000 Republicans voted for the Democratic candidate for Governor, and so many Republicans stayed at home that he was elected by the enormous majority of 192,000, but with all that majority he received only some 800 more votes than did Hancock in 1880. But what was the Republican vote, either actively voting or remaining silent? It was a protest against the Republican Administration which had repudiated Mr. Blaine and against his nominee, Mr. Folger by the Republicans, devoted to Mr. Garfield and Mr. Blaine; and but few of them are the men who now bolt Mr. Blaine's nomination. That vote of course will now go back to Mr. Blaine. So it would seem to be unwise for the Democracy to count on that vote for carrying the State of New York. That vote is not to be depended upon by the Democratic Governor who was so triumphantly elected is seen by the fact that the very next year, when the Governor desired his friend to be nominated as Secretary of State—the leading officer on the ticket, Mr. Maynard—he was defeated by some 10,000 votes, while the rest of the Democratic ticket were elected, making a change in one year (if anybody could be so silly as to believe that the 192,000 majority of the previous year was to be relied upon as Democratic votes) of 232,000 votes.

Reporter—Who do you think can carry the State of New York?

General Butler—Pardon me. It would neither be profitable nor proper for me to make prophecies. It would neither be interesting nor valuable. But if you desire I will state a few facts. The Governor felt it his duty as a matter of administration to veto the bill which enacted five-cent fares on the elevated railroads. That involved a very large amount of money to be taken from the toiling and laboring classes, who principally use that railroad, every year, as you will see, when the statistics show that 85,000,000 people are carried yearly on these roads, the veto securing to the railroads ten cents fare instead of five cents each, making a sum of $4,250,000 yearly. If the veto had stopped there, perhaps it might have been shown that this was necessary to be done, although it gave an impetus to the anti-monopolists which they never before had, but the ground on which the veto was based was certainly not Democratic, and that was that there was no constitutional power in one Legislature to regulate and abridge privileges granted by a former Legislature to a public agency, however oppressive those privileges had become. Again, it has been unfortunate for the Democracy that the Legislature has passed a bill with approval of the Governor taking from the Aldermen chosen by the people the power of rejecting or confirming the appointment of city officers, and that confined to the city of New York alone, apparently as a punishment applied to that city because it gave Democratic majorities.

Again, Mr. Blaine is a protectionist, and New York has become the greatest manufacturing State in the Union, and Connecticut and New Jersey are in proportion equally interested in the tariff question. Now, everybody knows that upon that question General Hancock was beaten in New York, and everybody also knows that the establishment of free trade in this country would benefit England and her dependencies more than all other countries in the world. It will be very difficult to convince a large class of our citizens, especially those who are not at all in love with England or her institutions, or her treatment of Ireland, that it is best to vote for the candidate of the Democratic party in favor of free trade, and thus to play into the hands of our old enemy, John Bull. Is it not an admitted fact that to carry New York is necessary to the success of the Democratic party? Can anybody who cannot reconcile all the differences in the party in New York, and who will be open to local antagonisms, carry that State, however great or high his qualifications may be?

Success at the coming election is not only the duty of the Democracy, but an indispensable necessity; for failing to carry the election this year gives four more years of power to the Republican party, and, under a bold and daring leader of great ability, large resources and agile sagacity, and who, by his unaided efforts, has wielded more political power than any other man of the present generation, the party will so intrench itself in possession of the Government that its hold upon the Nation cannot be overthrown, in this generation, at least; and if at all, it will be done by some new party of the people, rising from the debris of the present political organizations, more radical, more progressive and more devoted to the interests of the whole people against the aggression of the few. This will be the true Democracy, which will make no entangling alliances with the "mammon of unrighteousness."

"Long Live the Republican Party!"

The Buffalo Express, an independent newspaper, the first to bring Governor Cleveland into prominence, has placed the name of Blaine and Logan at the head of its columns and says it shall labor arduously for the Republican ticket. The matter was carefully reflected upon by the editor, and after mature deliberation this straightforward action was decided to be the only consistent course for the paper to pursue. In the editorial announcing its purpose the Express says:

What, then, should the Express do about it? Our first determination, promptly reached, was that Mr. Blaine should have fair treatment, as far as this paper was concerned, while we took time for thinking it over. But that rather negative attitude has not been productive of much contentment either for the Express or its readers. Here is one forcible protest:

"EDITOR BUFFALO EXPRESS:—Why does not your paper send forth a voice of no 'uncertain sound,' and leave the trimming and the sulking to the advocates of and agents of Arthur? How any one can write eloquently of the lamented Garfield, and then hold back from Blaine as if he were leprous is more than I can understand. I have known both of these men, and I am sure that I speak what is believed by the large majority of their mutual acquaintances when I say that Blaine is not more impure than Garfield was. Besides, did not the latter give to the former 'clean papers'—the strongest and the best of characters?

The Independents cannot expect to have everything trimmed to their own liking, and they ought not to weaken, much less, destroy, the organization through which alone they are able to make their influence tell upon the country.

Do give us a square, open word for the biggest man in American politics—who, sobered by the weight of responsibility, will make the best of Presidents, and who is bound to be elected.

Your respectful reader,
S. S. MITCHELL.

Buffalo, June 11, 1884."

This is a home thrust. "The reverend writer has a conscience as sensitive and a perception as keen as any of our Independent friends or contemporaries. If the Express owes any allegiance to anybody it must be to its readers. The great majority of its readers were Garfield Republicans, and the Garfield men, to a man, are for Blaine.

Here is another letter, and it is from one of the most uncompromising Reformers and yet one of the most earnest Republicans we have ever met:

"EDITOR BUFFALO EXPRESS:—Think it might be of interest to you to know the feeling here concerning the Chicago nomination, I write you this note.

Whilst we would have preferred Mr. Edmunds, Mr. Hawley, or Mr. Sherman, we are however, perfectly satisfied with Mr. Blaine. I have not heard a dissenting voice. We are thankful that Arthur was defeated. We remember Garfield, and we also remember that Blaine was the trusted man of his Administration, and his true and steadfast friend to the last.

I trust that the Express will take the lead in Erie County in the support of Blaine and Logan."

This letter comes to us from the country, and we have no doubt that it gives expression to the almost universal sentiment of our rural subscribers.

The two citizens are but samples. Every personal and political friend who has taken the trouble to speak to us on the subject, every one from whom we have heard—friends steadfast, unselfish, and faithful,—all have expressed sentiments similar to those given above. They cannot all be wrong. Their unanimity removes our doubts and settles our convictions.

For Blaine and Logan then, no matter who may be their competitors! Long live the Republican party!

WHY INSURE!

Because it would be so very convenient to receive a check for $1,000 to $5,000 in thirty days as it would not then be necessary to use any of the estate until such time as it could be used without loss in realizing.

Because if you should die with your estate was insolvent the policy would be secured for the protection of your family.

Because you can better spare the small amount it would cost each year to keep a policy in force while you live, than the family can do without the principal sum in case of your death.

You can sell a policy in which by the Conn. Mutual Life for cash, and use the money if desired to take care of it [illegible].

Words of Warning and Comfort

If you are suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, take cheer, if you are simply ailing, or if you feel weak and dispirited, without clearly knowing why, Hop Bitters will surely cure you.

If you are a minister and have overtaxed yourself with your pastoral duties, or a mother worn out with care and work, or a man of business or labor weakened by the strain of your everyday duties or a man of letters toiling over your midnight work, Hop Bitters will most surely strengthen you.

If you are suffering from over eating or drinking, any indiscretion or dissipation, or are young and growing too fast, as is often the case,

Or if you are in the workshop, on the farm, at the desk, anywhere, and feel that your system needs cleansing, toning or stimulating, without intoxicating, if you are old, blood thin and impure, pulse feeble, nerves unsteady, faculties waning, Hop Bitters is what you need to give you new life, health and vigor.

If you are costive or dyspeptic, or suffering from any other of the numerous diseases of the stomach or bowels, it is your own fault if you remain ill. If you are wasting away with any form of Kidney disease, stop tempting death this moment, and turn for a cure to Hop Bitters.

If you are sick with that terrible sickness, Nervousness, you will find a "Balm in Gilead" in Hop Bitters.

If you are a frequenter, or a resident of a miasmatic district, barricade your system against the scourge of all countries—Malaria, Epidemic, Bilious and Intermittent Fevers—by the use of Hop Bitters.

If you have rough, pimply, or sallow skin, bad breath, Hop Bitters will give you fair skin, rich blood, the sweetest breath and health. $500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

A Lady's Wish.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady.

"By using Hop Bitters that makes pure rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me as you observe."

None genuine without a bunch of green Hops on the white label. Shun all the vile poisonous stuff with "Hop" or "Hops" in their name.

COLUMBIA VS. HARVARD.

The Latter Wins.

NEW LONDON, June 18. The Columbia-Harvard University boat race, which took place, on a four-mile straight Thames course, this evening was very close and exciting and it is considered the finest contest ever rowed on the river. Harvard was the winner by three-fourths of a length. The water was very good. The attendance was not large. The word "go" was given at 6.49 P. M. and both crews started even, with Harvard rowing 37 stroke to Columbia 34. Not at any time during the race was there more than one length advantage gained by either. [illegible] at times gained a small lead. Harvard spurted on the last half mile, and although Columbia did her utmost, the former crossed the finish line a winner as indicated above. The Harvards time was twenty-four minutes, and thirty-one seconds.

Tuesday, June 17.

The law term of the Supreme Court began at 10 o'clock this forenoon. The Judges present are Chief Justice J. A. Peters and Associate Justices Charles Danforth, W. W. Virgin, L. A. Emery, Enoch Foster and Thomas H. Haskell. Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Peck, of the Universalist church.

The first case heard was that of Joseph Chandler vs. Vinal B. Wilson.

Powers & Powers and Lambard for plaintiff.

Wilson, & Spear and Donworth for defendant.

Wednesday, June 18.

Several cases have already been heard by the full court. The one to-day of the most interest to the public was that of Emulus A. Hills, petitioner, vs. Carrie E. Hills. A divorce was granted to the wife in Waldo County in 1883, and now petitioner comes and asks for a new trial on the ground, among other things, that the amount of alimony allowed by Judge Barrows was too great. Hon. A. G. Jewett, of the firm of Jewett & Brown, of Belfast, appeared for the petitioner and Wm. H. Folger, Esq., for respondent. The respondent appeals [illegible] on the ground that there was a full and fair trial before and no reason for a new one.

JUBILATION IN BANGOR.

Reception of Blaine and Logan.

AN IMMENSE OVATION.

The Whole City in the Streets.

CANNON, BELLS AND WHISTLES PROCLAIM THE PEOPLE'S JOY.

Speeches by Ex-Chief Justice Appleton, Hon. S. H. Blake, Hon. James G. Blaine, General John A. Logan and Senator Eugene Hale.

Yesterday was a red letter day for the Republicans of Bangor. Never before have they had the honor bestowed upon them of a visit from their candidates for President and Vice President in company, as also never before has such a pleasure been granted to this State since its existence. Adding to this the happy fact that the nominee for President is the honored and idolized citizen of our own State and why should not the occasion be one of rejoicing and unbounded enthusiasm. The demonstration of yesterday was not one anticipated and prepared for by long days of preparation, but was a spontaneous outburst of enthusiasm brought about by the unexpected, and, but a few hours previous, unannounced visit of our distinguished guests.

On Tuesday it was learned that Mr. Blaine and General Logan were to pay a visit to Ellsworth, the home of Senator Hale in company with that gentleman and it was thought that they might tarry long enough to receive an expression of our good will, but Mr. Blaine, with his accustomed forethought, not deeming it to be in good taste, and entirely contrary to the Democratic party who were then holding a convention here to have a Republican demonstration at that time, it was arranged to postpone it until yesterday when they should pass through this city on their return.

Tuesday evening a meeting of the Blaine and Logan Club was held at which the programme was arranged as announced yesterday morning, all which was so successfully carried out yesterday.

The train being due at about six o'clock last evening a procession was formed at City Hall, under command of Col. A. B. Farnham as marshal and at twenty minutes of six took up the line of march for the Exchange street station in the following order:

Platoon of Police.
Drum Corps of Boys.
A. B. Farnham, Marshal.
Aids.
Returned Soldiers and Sailors.
Milford Cornet Band.
Citizens.
Presiding Officer and Speakers in Barouche.

The streets were thronged with spectators, and a dense mass filled the platform at the station.

A few minutes before six a discharge of cannon made, direction of Maj. W. Z. Clayton, announced the approach of the train and a salute of 18 guns was fired as it rolled into the station while the bells of the city churches sent forth joyful peals and the whistles upon the steam mills added their shrill notes of welcome.

The party were met and received by Mr. F. G. Clark, President of the Blaine and Logan Club, and escorted to barouches in waiting while a hearty welcome was given in loud and long continued cheering.

The procession took up the line, escorting the distinguished party in the following order: Mr. Blaine, Gen. Logan, Mayor Humphrey and J. G. Clark, Esq., in an elegant barouche, drawn by a magnificent pair of black horses, provided by Mr. F. O. Beal, and driven by Frank Brackett. Senator Hale, ex Chief Justice Appleton and Hon. S. H. Blake followed in another barouche.

The third and last barouche, a splendid turnout from Nichols' stable, contained Mrs. Blaine, Mrs. Hale, Miss Dodge and Mrs. Boutelle.

The route was through Exchange and York streets to the First Parish church on Broadway, in front of which a platform had been erected.

Thousands of people filled the square and adjacent streets and sidewalks, and beautiful flags adorned neighboring houses.

As Mr. Blaine and General Logan were conducted to the platform they were received with rounds of applause and cheers.

The barouche containing the ladies was driven to the residence of Hon. C. A. Boutelle, where the ladies took a short rest, after which they were given a drive about the city.

Mayor Humphrey called the vast assemblage to order and in a few remarks introduced Ex Chief Justice Appleton who spoke as follows:

ADDRESS OF EX-CHIEF JUSTICE APPLETON.

In behalf of the Republicans of Bangor I bid you welcome. We greet you as the chosen candidates of the people for the highest honors of the Republic—candidates whom the people delight to honor. Chosen as statesmen who will at all times and under all circumstances sustain its honor and dignity and carry into full effect those measures of administration and public policy which will best conduce to national prosperity.

Illinois and Maine are sister States, bound together by the sacred memories of the past, when Lincoln and Hamlin were the standard bearers in the fierce and terrible battle between slavery and freedom. The stern conflicts of civil war are over, and the nation rejoiced in the nobler and more enduring victories of peace. And now once more hail the popular voice of the great Republican party, with an unanimity giving the assurance of success, called the accomplished statesman and the brilliant orator from the one State (cheers) and the frank and gallant soldier from the other (cheers) as leaders in the coming conflict of political opinions.

Maine will lead in the van and lead to victory.

In the name of the assembled multitudes of this city I bid you welcome and God speed the right. (Prolonged cheers.)

SPEECH OF HON. S. H. BLAKE.

Mr. Blake said: I need not add anything to the words of welcome with which our learned ex-Chief Justice has so gracefully greeted you.

We feel that you honor us by your presence, and we can but tender you the homage of our high appreciation of your services in the Cabinet and in the field.

Twenty odd years ago the people of this country were confronted with the terrible fact that the Southern States were plotting a dissolution of the Union. We had all our lives been in the habit of looking upon our flag as it floated in the breeze as the emblem of freedom and liberty and enfranchisement, and as foreshadowing the rising of a power this side of the Atlantic soon to take its place at the head of the Nations of the world. The treason of the South contemplated the tearing that flag into shreds and substituting in its stead some worthless bunting that could but be the emblem of discord, and weakness and disunion.

Twenty odd years ago it was that this dark cloud loomed up in the Southern horizon, threatening with its lightning thunder bolts to sever this fair fabric of our Union in twain or to shiver it into splinters, as might be the accident of the play of the elements.

Then it was that you, honored sirs, younger than you are to-day, took your stand, marching to the front and tearing down the bridges behind you, preferring death to national disgrace, or inglorious servitude. And ever since you, whom we are so proud to claim as a fellow-citizen of our State, have been foremost and most earnest in all measures to put down the rebellion, and then, in most wise and conciliatory conduct to heal the wounds inflicted by it upon the body of the Republic, and in the constant support, by extraordinary eloquence, of such measures and policies as have enhanced the public weal and promoted the growth and prosperity of the republic. Fame and time the brilliancy of your achievements in legislative halls has added to the republic.

And you, Sir, who come to us from the State of the martyred Lincoln, are endeared to us by his sacred memory. A noble product of American Western manhood was Mr. Lincoln. It is a creed of the Catholic Church, that when a good man has died to wait a hundred years before his canonization by the church, that his virtues and his faults may be duly tested by time. But our country has not waited so long to weigh the character and virtues of Abraham Lincoln, but it has already canonized him in the hearts of the people and you come from the State that contains his sainted remains. And though you live further away than a crow can fly in many days, yet your gallant conduct in the field and your generous services in the Senate to reward and pension the soldier and his family not otherwise provided for, has made your name a household word with us and has excited our admiration and received our gratitude.

The platform upon which you have been placed was formulated by the representatives and agents of the people and it has already received the approval of the Republican party, with hardly a dissent that I am aware of. The platform is a sound one and contains a reaffirmation of the principles and measures, that for the twenty five years past, have distinguished the Republican party in its brilliant career, and made our country great, prosperous and wealthy. And as nominees of the convention that made the platform you have been placed upon it with the approval of the party in accordance with a clearly expressed overriding public sentiment, indicating you unmistakingly as the choice of the party and of the people. How then can any one participating in that convention in honor bolt its nominations? And how then can any one claiming to be a Republican and who approves of the platform do otherwise than to support the nominations unless he is prepared to go over to the enemy and join the Democratic party.

But the nominations are distasteful to certain gentlemen. Are they doctrinaires and in favor of free trade and would they blight the industries of the country as by a killing frost and bring the wages of American freemen down to the pauper prices of the serfdom of Europe and the east? Or do they still believe in the protection and encouragement of manufactures of American industries, as they have professed to all their lives. If so, how are they going to make sure that the principles they believe in shall prevail, except by supporting the nominees of their party. They cannot plan a new line of action with any hope of success and they certainly will not aid to make their Republican principles prevail by going over to the enemy and electing him. If they can N. [illegible] will not do, and treason is to [illegible] in politics as it is in war.

Again, if the Democratic party should come into power in all branches of the government with the control of power of that party in the South, how long would it be before war debts of the southern States would be assumed and their soldiers pensioned and our national debt thus doubled.

But these political Pharisees will stay on the platform and act with the party, or get off and go into the utter darkness of the Democratic party as they may please. Certain it is that there is no name given under heaven whereby they can be saved to the party they have heretofore acted with except that of Blaine and Logan.

And now fellow citizens I congratulate you upon the bright prospects of the campaign and I rejoice to believe with you that we have seen the sun rise in the East that will go up and up until it reaches the zenith in its noonday splendor upon the ides of November when no other sun or stars shall be anywhere visible in the heavens save only the one whose rising in Maine we have hailed with so much joy.

Loud calls for Blaine was then made, and on being presented by Mayor Humphrey he was received with tempestuous cheering and applause. When able to be heard Mr. Blaine spoke as follows:

MR. BLAINE'S SPEECH.

I have so often in the past had the honor of a Bangor welcome, that I know its depth and sincerity. And I am sure, it was never extended to me on any occasion before where it was so grateful as it is to-day.

I expected to encounter no such large assemblage as this. Gen. Logan came to Maine on no public errand, but on a personal visit to myself and to our distinguished fellow-citizen, Senator Hale. But the ardor of Republican Maine would not permit him to go beyond our borders without making manifest to him the heartiness and cordiality with which he is welcomed to our homes and firesides. I am traveling only as his attendant, and to represent you as the Maine host in giving him a welcome within our border. (Mr. Blaine here remarked facetiously that no man can play the hero among his own familiar friends and that that must be reserved to him if he went to other states. Laughter and applause.) We are friends and neighbors, and I wish you to join me, as I am sure you will, in doing honor to that illustrious citizen of Illinois, at the time one of the great Democratic leaders of that state, who, when his country was in peril, forgot all political devotion and divisions, and drew his sword in defense of the Union. (Great applause.) I therefore have the honor, as it is also a pleasure, to present to you the great and brave soldier and eloquent and eminent Senator John A. Logan, of Illinois. (Long and continued applause.)

GENERAL LOGAN'S SPEECH.

Ladies and Gentlemen—My heart is filled with gratitude at the greeting I have received in the State of Maine while traveling through it. Certainly, as far as I am personally concerned, I most fully appreciate the compliment that is paid by the citizens of this very beautiful city in its greeting to-day to your honored candidate and to myself, as associated with him.

It happens that the people of this country, from time to time, in accordance with the laws and customs of the Nation, are called upon to express their views upon the great questions that are agitating the public mind, and to select from their numbers persons to act as their agents and representatives in the management of the affairs of this great Republic of ours. A convention recently met in the State where I live, Illinois,—in the city of Chicago, representing all the states and all the congressional districts therein for the purpose of electing a standard bearer for the Republican party, for the coming election. When the delegates, being fairly chosen, and representing the people of all sections of the country, were assembled together they asked themselves what is best for the interests of this great country. The voice of a great majority of that convention was that the time had come when broad statesmanship was required to place our country and its people in proper attitude before the civilized world. The mind of that great convention settled upon several propositions. They determined that the people wanted a [illegible] for President [illegible] wanted a man of understanding and experience in public affairs.

They wanted a man who sympathizes fully with all the great interests of the country. They wanted some man who had manifested by his conduct in public life that he possessed an appreciation of the sentiment that pervades all classes of people for the welfare and future progress of our common country. They felt that it would be prudent to take for a candidate a man who understands and appreciates our foreign relations, as well as our diversified internal interests. A man who has the ability to see that every right and interest would be cared for and protected. A man who would seek to preserve to us the advantages of our great trade and commerce, and to keep open the avenues by which we may dispose of our manufactures and surplus productions—in order that our financial and material prosperity may be ever increasing.

When these considerations weighed upon the minds of that convention, although there were many other good and honorable names mentioned that were strongly supported as well fitted for the position, the great majority of the delegates turned their eyes to your proud State, and said the man who comes nearest to filling the bill than all other names spoken of is the statesman James G. Blaine of the Pine Tree State of Maine. (Tumultuous and long continued applause.)

Now fellow citizens, without detaining you but a moment longer (cries of "go on, go on") I will say and mark me well, that by the ides of November the patriotism of the people will be thoroughly aroused—the old camp fires that have been slumbering will be rekindled, burning brightly upon every hilltop and lighting up every valley within the boundaries of the entire United States of America. (Applause and cheers.) The sound will go forth as one voice from the American people that the choice dictated by the people is to be by the people recognized and sustained. (Applause.) Notice will then be given that no man or set of men can set themselves up as dictators to the American people as to what they shall do—(applause)—that neither the government of the United States nor the Republican party are ready to yield their rights or prerogatives to a few men who are ever dissatisfied if they cannot control. (Applause.)

Our Government is built upon the theory that the people shall rule. And the Republican party upon the same theory demands that the people shall control. (Applause.)

We do not wish to lapse into the condition of the old and effete monarchies where the monarch commands and the people obey. With us the people are the monarchs who issue the edicts. The people are to be obeyed. (Applause.) The people of this country have no generals to follow. They have no commanding officers. They command themselves. (Applause.) And let me say that as in the past so will it be in the future. And if there are those who claim to belong to us, who are unwilling to go along with us, they will be found standing upon the wayside when the procession has passed by. (Applause.)

Fellow citizens, I have almost betrayed myself into speaking beyond an acknowledgement of your kindness in this greeting by the citizens of Bangor. (Cries of go on, go on.)

I again return thanks to the citizens of this proud State. I have no hesitation in saying to the citizens of Maine that although I had some hopes in thinking I was deserving the place at the head of the ticket, I agree with them in their choice, and I made the best contribution that could be made. And that I am proud of the honor of standing side by side with your gallant citizen whom they have chosen. (Applause and cheers.)

Mr. Hale being [illegible] called for was [illegible] by the children and [illegible] was received with cheers. He said:

SPEECH OF SENATOR HALE.

Fellow Citizens: Since General Logan today [illegible] out of the [illegible] and lusty Washington. Whom shall we see and what shall we do down in Maine? And [illegible] to him in reply, "I want you, General, to get a Maine welcome. I want you to be present to receive a welcome at Augusta and to take you to my own home to receive the greetings of Ellsworth; but above all, General Logan, I do not mean that you shall leave the State till you have had a Bangor welcome." And to-day you [illegible] is the demonstration that you make is worthy not only of the illustrious guests who have come here, candidates for the two great offices of the Republic, but is worthy of yourselves. And it is fitting that there should be a popular demonstration in favor of the candidates of the Republican party this year, for if ever in the history of parties from the day when the Republic was organized down to the present time the people have got up in their majesty and have spoken their command and determined upon and enforced popular nominations, it is the nomination of Blaine and Logan at the head of the Republican ticket. This thing was not brought about by arrangement nor finesse. These nominations that were made at Chicago were not the result of long and subtle [illegible] plans of cunning men. They did not emerge from caucuses of [illegible] and trying wires and [illegible] political instrumentalities to bear upon any representative bodies of men, but the American people in their communities speaking directly from their districts sent their delegates to Chicago to nominate one man for President of the United States and they followed those delegates there by tens of thousands to see that their wills should be obeyed.

No allegation has been made anywhere that any trickery or corruption or fraud tainted that convention. It was not dominated, my friends, by patronage and by office-holding elements; it was all done notwithstanding the efforts of those who were there representing patronage. And [illegible] after all the preliminaries had been gone through after the organization had been accomplished with all the advantages of the temporary organization and the permanent organization against him, and the friends of the various candidates had done their best to secure their nomination a voice like thunder called for the name of Blaine. (Loud cheering.) Mr. Hale continued at some length and then referred to the time, twenty years ago to-day, when General Logan with his rifled cannon at Kenesaw Mountain made the flag of the enemy trail in the dust before the onslaught of his invincibles. This was but one of the many brilliant victories that he won. He went on conquering and to conquer, until the rebellion was stamped out. He paid a tribute to General Logan's unremitting advocacy of the interests of the soldier both in the House of Representatives and in the Senate of the United States. He spoke of Mr. Blaine's public life as having been open to public inspection and criticism for the past twenty five years. Yonder noble elm, which has been exposed to the sun light and the storm, and all the force of the elements, is not more open to your view than is the character of James G. Blaine. Have you any doubt that the American people are going to elect these men in November? (cries of no no.)

In the triumphant march of the Republican party, under their leadership this year, the voice of the people, which, it has been said, is like the voice of God, which commanded in June in Chicago will command and be obeyed in all the United States in November. (Loud and long continued applause.)

After the speaking the thousands in attendance pressed forward to shake hands with the honored visitors, and were presented by Mayor Humphrey and President Clark of the Blaine Club.

The procession then reformed and escorted the party to the cars, where they took the Pullman train for Augusta.

The sight was a magnificent one, as the line extended from Broadway to Kenduskeag bridge, while the sidewalks were thronged and the streets, outside of the procession were densely filled with people on foot and in carriages. It was a magnificent ovation to the distinguished and beloved citizen of Maine, who nowhere is better beloved nor held in higher esteem than in our own city of Bangor.

As the procession passed beneath the splendid flag in West Market Square, bearing the names of our candidates it was greeted with hearty cheers.

Arriving at the depot the party entered the Pullman car "Kennebec," which most appropriately was attached to the train, and took their departure amid cheers and the booming of cannon, and each one highly [illegible] them, than which no city in the State than Bangor can give one more enthusiastic or more heartfelt.

Their stay in the city being so brief, there was no opportunity for the party to take supper here, and the Directors car which brought them from Augusta having been obliged to return at noon a splendid parlor car was attached to the train and placed at their disposal, in which, by direction of the Blaine and Logan Club a table was spread by [illegible] Fields Murry, of the Maine Central Refreshment rooms set out with a new service procured for the occasion, a hot supper was provided, consisting of broiled salmon, beef steak, chicken salad, hot coffee, ice cream, cake, lemonade, ice water, etc. etc., which it is hoped was enjoyed as they sped upon their journey.

This visit to our city of the men whom the people delight to honor, will long live in the memory of those present, even of the little ones who had the pleasure of grasping the hands and receiving pleasant word from those who after March 4th next, are to be President and Vice-President of the United States.

As we said at the opening of this report it was indeed a red letter day for Bangor.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

Burning of J. A. Greenacre's House, Barn and Buildings with Most of Their Contents.

About half past two yesterday afternoon it was discovered in the outbuilding, connected with the residence of Mr. James A. Greenacre on the Webster road in West Bangor and the fire, which is supposed to have started in the carriage house was under great headway when first seen. Mrs. Greenacre and her daughter who were upstairs asleep when aroused by the neighbors, were the only persons at home.

An alarm was very speedily rung in from box 34 and the fire department were quickly at the scene, but the fire had spread so rapidly that it was beyond control. Added to this was an insufficiency of hose to reach from the nearest hydrant and the further fact that in some manner the hydrant was out of order so that no water could be thrown on the fire.

The whole set of buildings, being very extensive, including house, ell, shed, carriage house, barn and other buildings were entirely consumed, and with the exception of a piano, but a small amount of furniture was saved. A valuable horse and [illegible] carriage were also burned as well as all tools, utensils, etc. Mr. Greenacre's loss is somewhere from $6,000 to $7,000 on which he has an insurance of $3,500 in [illegible] S. Peirce's agency.

A barn of little value, quarter of a mile away, caught from the flying cinders causing a second alarm. It was entirely consumed, but the adjoining house was saved by the department.

Fourth District Democratic Convention.

The Democratic Convention for the Fourth Congressional District was held in City Hall yesterday.

The convention was called to order at two o'clock by Frank A. Owen, Esq. of the State Committee and John F. Robinson was made temporary chairman and George F. Donworth temporary Secretary.

Mr. Owen from the Committee on Credentials reported the whole number present as one hundred and twelve.

It was then voted, on motion that the temporary organization be made permanent.

On motion Messrs. Jones of Aroostook, Moore, of Washington, Benson of Penobscot, and Robinson of Piscataquis were appointed Committee on Resolutions.

The proceedings were of the tamest order possible nothing occurring to raise even a ripple of a breeze which considering the heat of the day would have been a relief.

No balloting was had upon any question every vote being made by acclamation.

A. J. Chase, of Seboo, and John P. Donworth of Houlton, were chosen delegates to the Chicago Convention, and Calvin Chamberlain, of Foxcroft, and Jefferson Sweet, of Eastport, alternates.

Joseph F. Snow was nominated as candidate for Presidential elector.

On motion of Mr. John P. Donworth of Aroostook, John F. Lynch, Esq. of Machias, was nominated as candidate for Representative to Congress.

Mr. Lynch accepted in a brief speech.

The Committee on Resolutions reported the following through John Benson, Esq.

Resolved. That we, the Democrats of the Fourth Congressional District in convention assembled, endorse and adopt the resolutions of the Democratic State Convention holden at Bangor, June 17, 1884.

Resolved. That we most heartily endorse the nomination of John F. Lynch as the candidate for Congress from this District, and with pleasure recommend him to the voters of this Congressional district as a candidate eminently fitted for the high position for which he has been nominated.

The following were chosen as District Committee: Frederick A. Cummings, Bangor; Henry Hudson, Guilford; A. L. Barker, Fort Fairfield; James Vallinger, Machias.

The convention then adjourned after a session of less than an hour.

New Advertisements.

One of Jacob Stern & Co.'s characteristic advertisements appears in this paper this morning, and is well worth a full and careful perusal. Messrs. Stern & Co. offer good standard goods at much below the regular selling prices, and give for their reasons that their stock is very large—too large for the present times—and, rather than to have the goods remain on the shelves, they offer them to the public at prices which will insure a quick sale and which will be appreciated by their many patrons.

Sea Bathing

A DIP IN THE SURF SOMETIMES AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION FOR DELICATE PERSONS

[Dr. ... in Harper's Weekly.]

Sea bathing is not a cure-all, yet there are few classes of people to whom it may not bring some benefit. For delicate constitutions and for many of the conditions of debility sea bathing is a powerful tonic. It is beneficial for many invalids. Of the many persons who are in need of a tonic and strengthening treatment there are but few who will not derive benefit from sea bathing, provided only that they will make haste slowly and bear in mind the necessary precautions.

The question of the sea temperature is an important one for a safe beginning; the water must be warm enough. ... source of benefit in sea or river bath ... the coolness of the temperature and the consequent healthy glow of warmth caused by the rushing of blood to the skin, on leaving the water and the stimulating influence upon the viscera.
